CAMP WAGES WAR AGAINST FAT

By Brad Polan

People think that the Diet Table is back but it isn't. The new name is Waupaca War on Pounds and for this new program, no-one is going to be watching over anyone else. But will the counsellors and campers go along with it? Mary Ann our camp nurse said that in her opinion people could take pills, or stuff themselves but that is not the way a successful weight reduction program will work. The two teams will be the Porkers and the Oinkers and will compete against each other to take off the most weight.

The reason for the new program is also to show the participants how they can lose weight on their own and to learn new methods for losing weight.

A calorie chart for each member is hanging on the mess hall wall near the piano and an occasional weigh-in will be conducted at the infirmary.

Below is a list of staff who have volunteered to participate:

Manny- 6 lbs.
Mike Euer- 8 lbs.
Pete Jones- 8 lbs.
George Lamm- 10 lbs.
Ray Krysh- 10 lbs.
Sandi Jones- 8 lbs.
Susi Stoffel- 8 lbs.
Wayne Towne- 5 lbs.
Rick Turiel- 8 lbs.

and the list continues with twelve campers. If anyone else is interested in signing up for Waupaca's War on Pounds, let the

CLASS CORNER

Boating

By Adam Fleischer

I interviewed Cliff Hawkins for the Waupaca Herald Tribune.

Why did you start to teach boating?

Cliff: Because nobody else would.

Adam: Did you ever get sea-sick?

Cliff: Oh boy, did I get sea sick!

Adam: Do you like swimming?

Cliff: No!

Adam: Have you ever water-skiied before?

Cliff: Yes, but nobody believes that I have!

Adam: Now for a personal question. Do you like girls?

Cliff: Some of them.

Adam: Did you ever fall off of a pier?

Cliff: Not lately, but many people have told me to take a long walk off a short pier!

DEAR BLABBY...

Dear Blabby,

I have a counsellor who snores. What should I do? Signed Non-Sleeper

Dear Non-Sleeper,

Put a close-pin on his nose. If that does not work committ suicide; if you do you won't have to worry about snoring where you're going.

Dear Blabby,

My bunk mate has such bad breath he melted the springs on my top bunk. What do I do?

Signed I'm Dying

Dear I'm dying,

Make him use Scope for two weeks. If that doesn't work, use him as a heater. You will probably save energy!

Allow me to introduce myself. I am Blabby, the know all and tell all. Send me your problems to the office in the box marked BLABBY. Those letters selected will be published each issue.

EDITORIAL

(The views expressed in this column are not necessarily those of the paper's staff.)

Hello, I am Eric Kaplan here to talk about the weeds in the swimmers area.

Someone has to do somethin about this problem. The weeds feel slimy and, gookey and frequently get stuck between your toes.

Soon everyone will abandon Little Lake Stratton and move to Camp Cucamonga.

Some suggestions include draining the lake and then taking the weeds out and filling the lake again. Or find some muck and weed eating animals that will do it. Or have all the staff members take the weeds out with a toothbrush.

If anyone has any other suggestions, please contact the waterfront. They will know what to do about this problem Thank you.

The Herald Tribune is always looking for contributors. Please help!

STRANGER THAN FICTION

By Dave Alpert

It all started when a kid named Schlemeel started to play cards. He was playing for matches. Soon he started to win lots of matches. Then he met an older kid named Joko. Joko taught him how to make more matches at cards. Schlemeel wasn't sure he wanted to get involved but he did anyway. Joko and Schlemeel then began playing cards with another boy. Schlemeel & Joko decided to gang up against the new boy so Schlemeel lost many matches and hoped that he and Joko would split the new boy's matches later. Joko didn't and they were both caught and dealt with. The moral is twofold. You shouldn't play your cards before they are dealt and you shouldn't match your wits with a card shark.

TURTLE FOUND!!

Wayne Towne found a land turtle and turned it over to the nature center.

COUNSELLOR CORNER

By Lee Roth

(This issue we highlight Cabin Five's staff, Allen Steinmetz, also the nature instructor)

Allen went to school in Richmond, Illinois. His teacher had read about conservation in grade school and after that he became interested in nature.

Later this fall he will enter Stevens Point University as a junior in Wildlife Management.

Allen's future goal is to be a park naturalist. A lot of kids ask him why he's so skinny and his response has been that he burns off more energy than he consumes. That is why he maintains his present weight.
