

CABIN NINE

Cabin Nine had a brand new bunch of second four weekers. That is not to say that they lacked experience. Those who returned for a second year were: David Cohen, Brian Fields, Chuck Garfein, Mike Jelinek, Neil Rosenblum, and Robert Master.

Here is a list of the boys nicknames and/or special skills. Neil "Smurf" Rosenblum, Mike Jello Jelinek who was a great impersonator and imitator, Jon "Plump" Netsky cleans up in poker, Steve "Chatterbox" Wittenberg who learned to shoot a rifle and push a broom, Lee "Animal" Eisner who was an excellent dungeon master in D & D. Ken "Kung FU" Kaufmann is a great all around athlete, Brian "Playboy" Fields is a home run king in softball, David Smiley Tickle is a great pitcher in softball and enjoys saying "Get off my bed.", Robert "Master Charge" Master excels in rugby, Chuck "Walk-man" Garfein made some amazing jumps in softball, and finally two kookey counsellors, Art Hellert and Steve Christie.

With such talents our cabin softball team won 2 out of three games losing only to older Cabin 11. Dungeons and Dragons kept us busy during the day but our counsellors wanted to take it way far from us-- especially at night. We also played Truth or Dare. When we had a tough dare, we asked the brave Steve Wittenberg---he always came through. It was a good second for all of us.

CABIN TEN

Art Hellert and I had a wide variety of campers in the first four weeks which provided a unique chemistry. There were some frictions yet most of the time the unity was remarkably strong. Our major unifying factor was the "air band" which played such songs as Eye of the Tiger, "Run to the Hills", and "Canary in a Coalmine." Brooms served as our guitars. Some impressions: Eric Fine has an incredible vocabulary for his age, Jim Feinstein provided our cabin with music and a good sense of humor, Greg Rappin uniquely modified his bed, Mike Orzoff scored an unbelievable 1,000,000 points in the Atari Defender, Harri-Larney liked to take Birthday shots of Steve, Jon Greenspahn was a great pitcher for the Rogues, Matt Glass walks loudly, and Josh Silverstein is a D & D fanatic. Art is a great storyteller and Steve liked to wake campers as the "Bad Breath Monster. It was great this summer.

CABIN TWELVE

The Wildest Cabin in History! or, How I gave my time, patience, and energy to get white hair. How can you explain a great bunch of guys in Cabin 12 like ours? Gary Korrub and his unique sense of humor always added a nice touch. Adam Bland was always willing to help with clean-up. Danny Kaplan always woke up on time, but did dazzle us with his great water-skiing skill, Rick Theiler and I always discussed theology and politics after taps. Mark Gussin, Tom Abelson, and Eliot Bretz led the camper side of the arguing while Rick and I tried to hold our own.

Of course we can't forget the cook-outs and the wonderful hot dogs. Robert Ezsak our Cabin CIT spaced us with his music and led the marshmallow brigade. Gary Nudelman was a great kid but had a great need to learn waterskiing.

We did deserve the wildest cabin in history award. Who in camp can forget the screen door, the fourth of July and the constant good times of Cabin 12??

CABIN FOURTEEN

Dear Mom,

The first four weeks were great. We had Peter Marx, Todd (I need some fireworks) Horberg, Bryan (Guns and ammo) Mallin, Mitch (button shorts) Bass, Andy (rafters) Costello, Steve (Take me to Vegas) Ellis, David (I don't wanna go on the camp out) Euer, and Steve (cut and spray) Wanty, and Steve (I hate 15) Olsher joined us from another cabin later in the first four weeks. Our counsellors were Rick (Great imitations) Curley and Dave (Chuck Norris) King.

During the first four we went to the Merrimac and saw "ET." On the last day Peter Marx and Todd Horberg and Bryan Mallin went home and the rest went to the Portage County Fair and watched Paul Warshauer in the Demolition Derby, and went on rides and played games.

The next day the second four weekers arrived & we got Adam (nibble) Fishman, Joel (ditch swimming) Gershon, Seth (D & D) expert Kramer, Brett (Sports encyclopedia) Forrest, and Jeff (Lets bug Seth all night) Kahn.

During the second four we went to the Merrimac and went bowling but one counsellor saw Grease II. We want to end this article by saying we had a great summer at Camp in 1982

CABIN ELEVEN

On July 19, 1982, we unloaded the buses and sat down at the Horseshoe. Here we were: Cabin 11. Matt Glass, Mitch Weisman, Brad Waxman, Jeff Kaplan, Jon Greenspahn, Ricky Shambert, Scott Hershman, and Jim Feinstein.

We took one step into the Cabin and knew that it wouldn't be like every other year: The place would have to be immaculate. Next thing we knew we were going to town. It wasn't like any other night on the town. We started off by going swimming, then pizza, then we went to Tom Thumb miniature golfing. "Hi Bo JAngles." Then bowling. Then we made pigs out of ourselves at the Dairy Queen. We made it back to camp finally after a great night out.

Up the next day at 7:30. No one knew that this was the day of the biggest rock concert ever at Camp Waupaca. It's Gold Rush Day. After all the gold was found, everyone came over to see the Bloody Skulls free rock concert. After the concert, Jimmy Feinstein and Matt Glass threw the drum set into the audience; this caused the biggest riot.

This year sure went fast. Hope to see everyone next year.

Matt Glass & Jeff Kaplan

CABIN FIFTEEN

The first four weekers were cool kids. Ronnie "theBronx" Levinson, entertained our cabin with all of his jokes and acting out the movie, "Porky". Probably the nicest kid in the cabin was Rich "Am I right?" Friedman. He was always right even if he wasn't right. Brian "the mess" Cole left everything he owned on the floor. Mitch "the ditch" Fisher loved all of his classes especially swimming. Gary "mellow yellow" Schotz couldn't quite stop drinking the soft drink and was himself mellow. Adam "monkey face" Levinson wouldn't waste his voice on anyone in the cabin. Roan, our cabin mascot lived under our cabin moved to town the third week of camp--- it was too much for him.

The second four weekers were a different breed of campers. Scott "Richie Rich" Kravitz always had someone else help him with his bed. David "hop-a-long" Levy met with a slight mishap and had to return home vowing never to ride a two wheel vehicle again. Greg "the hyena" Perlin had a distinctive laugh. JMson "I'm going to my brother's cabin" Berlow used this as hiding place. Alex "the missing link" Bassuk hung from the rafters with his long arms. Steve Danielson thought he was a cit before his time. Of course thanks to our counsellors, Tim "bozo" Fisher and Rick "The beater" Poole. They had to calm the riots but were lovable and cute.

THE CIT GANG

On a cool June Morning approximately 12 CITs loaded the buses having no idea what was to happen on the weeks to come. We rolled into camp 3 hours later and got our cabin assignments. The first four included Scott Silverman, Scott Serlin, Blaine Feldstein, David Reinstein, Jeff Levine, Rick Horwitz, Adam Stone, Robert Katz, John Riff, Brian Rosenberg, Bobby Frank, Dan Herman.

We all remember Cabin B's interior decorating and its removal by Cabin 12. We all remember the famous wake up lines hollared across the village.

Our first night we saw the movie, "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaids." From the movie we got a name for the competition team, The "Willie Adjusters". The next night in we saw ET. We even interviewed ET on the Rob Ezsak-Jeff Levine Show (Radio). The 3rd trip we went to Stevens Point and saw Poltergeist, and also went to an arcade.

The first four weeks went quickly. We said goodbye to the first four and that evening went to the Portage County Fair. Ray showed his patriotism to America by singing This Land Is Your Land on top of, well... We had fun driving home with Ray.

The next day the Greyhound buses pulled and we got the second weekers. They were Mike Blevit, Mitch Goldstein, Greg Prebish, Bob Gross, Don Schnair, Kevin Jacobs, Aron Auspitz, Steve Dayan, Jeff Chason, Jeff Veltman, Mike Manelis, Jeff Dubofsky, Mike Fine, Mike Cohen, and Jeremy Perlow.

Right away we could tell this new village was going to be something special with Jeff Chason's traps that Scott Serlin fell for. Some CITs went to the Dells and the rest on Wolf River trip. Stone, Dubofsky, and Gross learned that the best thing is to keep your hands above water when rafting. Both trips were a lot of fun.

The first cabin night of the second four weeks we went to see "Tron". The third we saw "Grease II." (We liked the songs "Reproduction" and "We're Going to Score Tonight") We met some interesting people at the Rosa. Names and details will be omitted to spare the innocent. We also remember the Cabin D forest. Let's not forget the tipping of beds in Cabin D & Cabin C's turning off the fuse to the village resulting in the sweeping of the basketball courts in the middle of the rain. Also when Dubofsky slept while we put him in the Tee Pee.

Overall the year has been fun. Thanks to Ray we all had a great summer.
