Mini Bikes

This past summer proved to be a "safe" and successful one out on the Mini-Bike Trail as many young "bikers" learned how to tear up the course with the powerful machines. We had two bikes the first four weeks; the big 70 and the little 50. Another 50 was added the second four weeks.

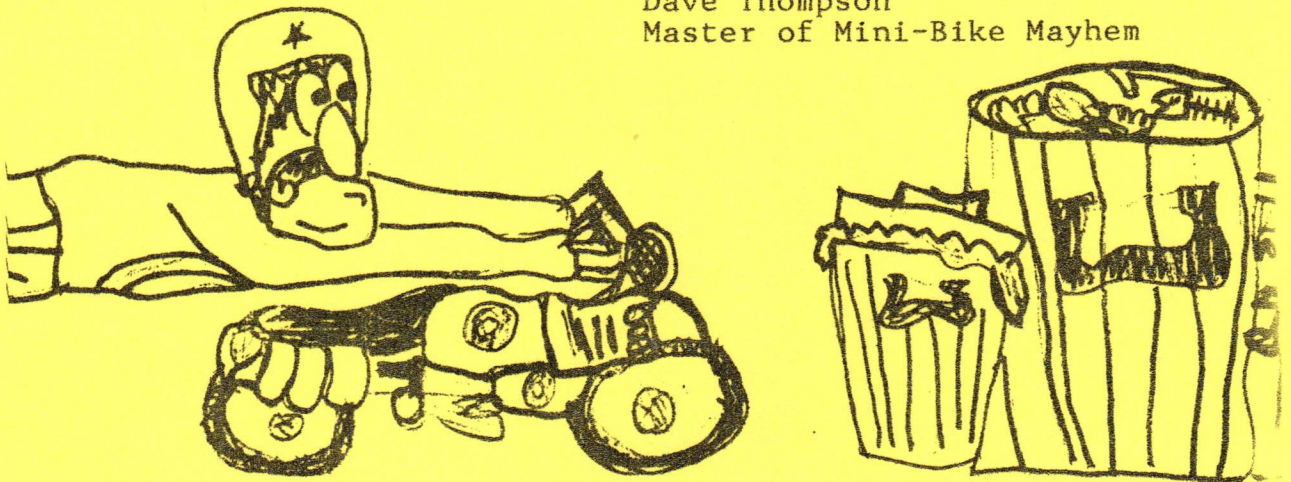

A number of boys got their first chance to ride three speed bikes this summer. Those included: Jeremy Kroner, Kevin Hoffman, Brett Schwartz, A. J. Levin, David Mann, Josh Bender, Jerry Lubelchek, Jon Kully, Neil Toppel, and Jared Cohler. First time riders from the Second Four included: Brian Robbins, David Linder, David Bluestone, Brad Rosen, Alex Flaster, Don Feinstein, Glen Weinberg, Jason Charles, Jordan Newman, Mike Mandel, Lorin (Jump Shift) Cohen, Marty Cless, Andy Eisenberg, Justin Bearak, Mike Margolese, Ryan Kaufman, Brian Millman, Steve Block, Geoff Glick, Jeff Bell, Jason Sims, Todd Medintz, Jon Goldfine, Jeff Strelitz, Craig Grabner, Andy Herman, Mike Machat, Gary Alterson, Rick Richker, Ian Rothenberg, and Lenny Sacchitello.

Many guys also made great progress on their biking skills such as Ed Schotz, Jon Gordon, Jon Goldman, Al Genender, Ben Marcus, Alan Cook, and Mike Levinson.

Before I close some special mention should be made to the following campers. First of all, for his outstanding ability to make it to so many classes, being a CIT and all, Greg Silverman. (at least 3 or 4) For his unselfishness in allowing others to take the bikes out, Gregg Feinstein. For his unparalleled abiding to the rules: Chris Thake. And finally for excellent handling of the bikes, (and besides he pestered me 20 times to put him in this article) Adam "crash" Moschin.

I know I may have seemed to yell a bit more than I smiled, but I did enjoy the summer out on the Old Trail. What better way to work on your tan? Right Bob Schless and Matt Glass??

Nature

Nature class during the first four weeks had its largest enrollment in camp history! We worked in many varied areas learning gardening, tree identification, small animal care and feeding, specimen collecting & exhibiting, habitat modeling, and more. Remember the great fun of the massive turtle hunts, nature hikes, and feeding time at the zoo? We collected and maintained several species of frogs, turtles, chipmunks, and mice. Observing them led to new insights on how natural ecosystems intertwine and function in harmonious balance. Our best budding naturalists included Chris Thake, Adam Moschin, the Silversteins & Goldmans, Ben Frank, Josh Bender, David Weitzenfeld, Harold Alterson, and more who continued on into the 2nd four weeks.

Photography

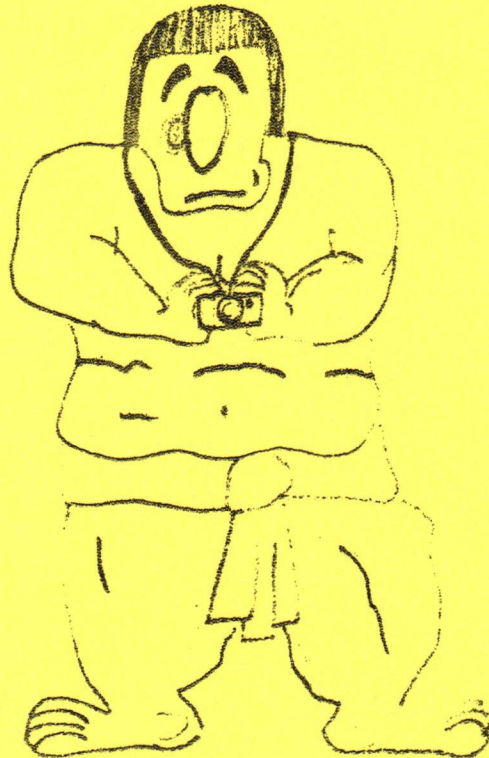

The Photography classes this year were a real success. The Program included taking quality pictures, developing the film, and printing of the negatives. We develop 110, 126, and 35 mm film.

We started out by talking about how to take well balanced pictures and determining what comprised a well composed shot. Then we got right into it by taking a few rolls and developing them. Gabe Goodman, Dan Oseran, and Ben Frank had great fun trying to put the film into the rollers; after that everything went great.

Jon Goldman and Marc Goldman spent alot of free-time in the lab and their efforts paid off as they came out with a lot of prints.

The second four weeks had alot of new faces. Jeff Strelitz, Evan Beigel, Corey Dubin, Sean Swidler, Brad Olswang, Marc Olswang, Jason Newman, Neal Silins, Jon Goldfine, Joel Robbins, Jon Gordon, Charlie Friedberg. All in all we had a great time in the lab this year. Keep taking GREAT pictures, guys!!

Riding

Horseback Riding this fine year of 1984 was a great experience for the campers as well as for myself. This year being my first at Waupaca, I come away from the experience with many pleasant memories. I'm sure that Jon Greenspahn will remember this summer also. Bitsy awaits you next summer, Jon. After seeing Superman, Jon tried to imitate him by performing for the first four week riders. Belly flops, side saddle riding, etc. etc.

Oh yes, another dare-devil was Scott Rubin who came into the corral riding side saddle...not as graceful as Jon, but marvellous as well.

Everyone was quite knowledgeable when it came to knowing the Equestrian Tack. Second four weekers were all horsemen before arriving except for one, Marc Hirsch. He learned quickly and was soon ready for the fastest horse in the corral. Here is the list of our Horsemen. First Four Weekers : Gary Alterson, Josh Bender, Paul Frank, Alan Genender, Adam Goldstein, Jon Greenspahn, A. J. Levin, Mike Margolese, Chad Miller, Scott Rubin, Adam Siegal, Josh Silverstien, Howie Statland.

The Second Four Weekers (who were a little quieter than the first four weekers) were: Lorin Cohen, Danny Drexler, Alan Edelman, Lukas Gelman, Andy Hirsch, David Hoke, Mike Machat, Jason Neuman,, Bryan Robbins, Ari Siegal, Neal Silins, Jeff Strelitz, Eric Waxman.

Riflery

The goals of the Camp Waupaca rifle program were not only to produce quality marksmanship, but to stress safety on the rifle range. We also wanted campers to better appreciate the sport of riflery and to have fun.

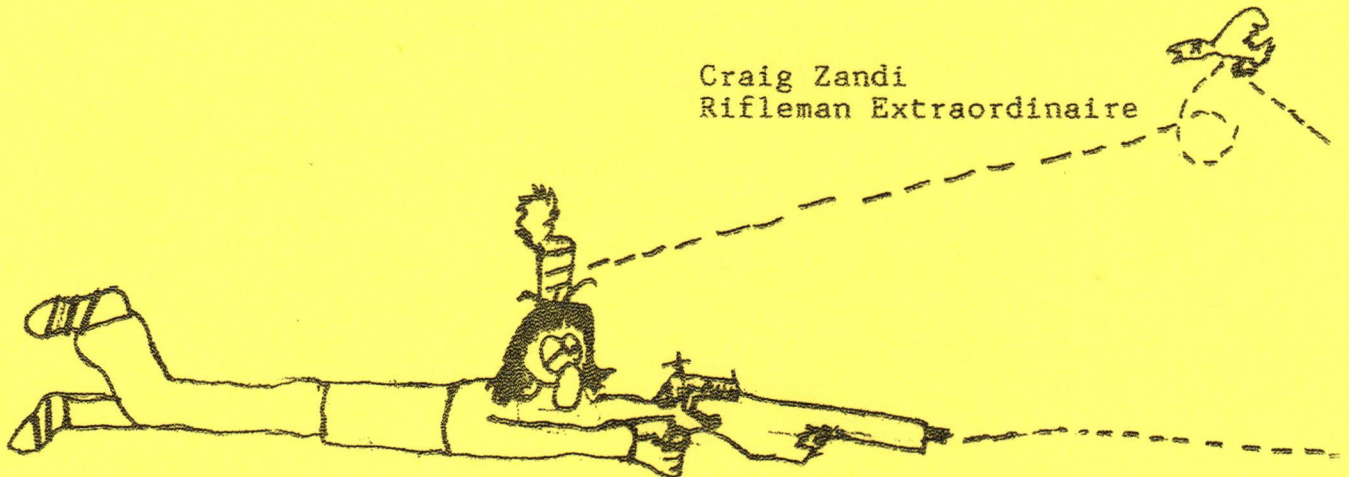

We had many campers accomplish the rating of Pro-Marksman which is the first step in the NRA (National Rifle Association) course. By accomplishing this first step, each individual fires from the prone position, lying down. But accomplishments didn't stop at this level. There were a great number of campers who completed firing all the way through to Bar 1 in the prone position. Then, a number of people reached the sitting position. The boys were challenged because of the difficulty involved and the pace slowed slightly as their abilities were strengthened.

One individual, Scott Rubin, reached the rank of EXPERT. He showed a great deal of dedication working on his skills and attitudes. When he didn't do as well as he liked, he tried much harder the next time. Congratulations on this difficult but well earned award, Scott.

As the weeks progressed, all campers found that Marksmanship is something that just doesn't happen. They realized that they must work very hard and concentrate if they ever want to improve their shooting skills. They also found that on a rifle range it takes a great deal of concentration and discipline if they are to improve; they must always pay attention!

Some of our campers deserve special recognition because of their accomplishments. They are Brett Schwartz, Mike Shea, David Lasky, Charlie Friedberg, Gabe Goodman, Steven Block, Erin Greene, Scott Macomber, and Brian Rosen. These boys seemed to qualify with lightning speed. The list which follows indicates the highest award each boy attained this summer on the Rifle Range. We hope to see you all next year and have a safe year.

Swimming

Who wants to go swimming? What? No one wants to get in the water? Too cold?! Come on, the water's great! "Why are your lips so blue?" Maybe the heater went out. Warren had better get right on that...

The lake was cold, and swim classes were required, but everyone went to class (at least once), and many campers achieved a new level of Red Cross certification. But that wasn't the only activity at the waterfront.

Adam Moschin got wet--once; Jon Gordon spent most of his time bribing his way out of class; both Steve Edelmann and Jeff Fagel accidentally learned the sidestroke. Ed Schotz went into the water every day, no matter how thick the ice was. Gabe Goodman held his breath a lot.

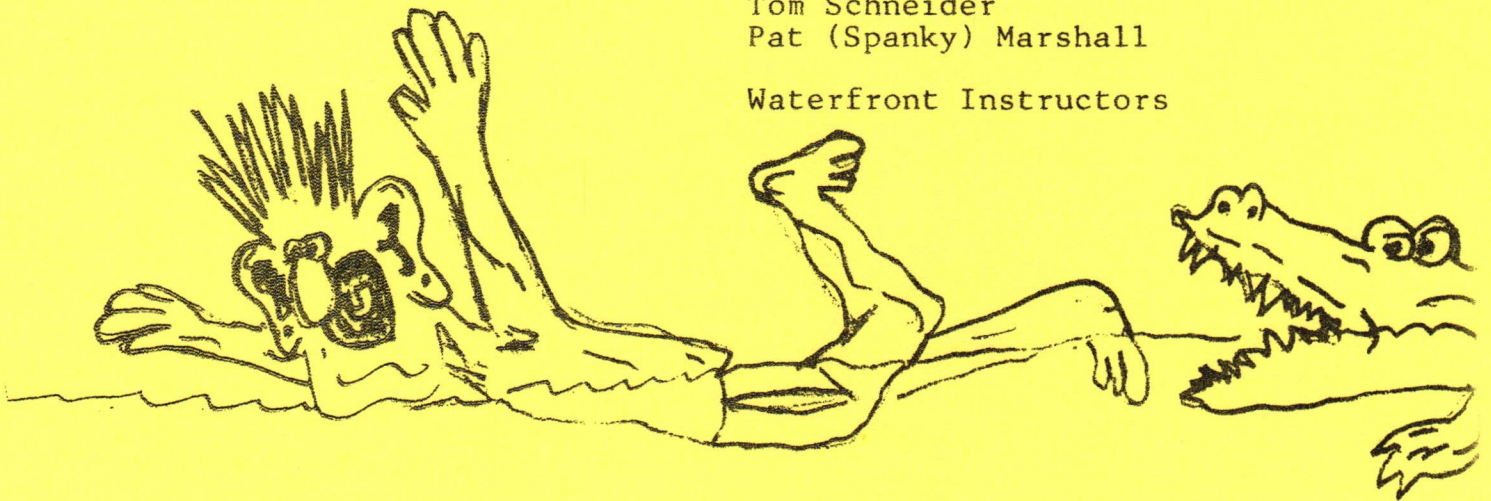

Several other accomplishments deserve recognition: Eric Fine cooperated quite well; Dan Oseran scored the highest of all campers who took the Basic Water Safety quiz; Jon Goldfine worked hard despite chattering teeth. Bruce Fisher mastered the elementary backstroke; Eric Genin and Eric Goldstine treaded water for 45 minutes; Danny Klapman, Joel Robbins, Chad Arbogast, and Marty Cless all swam across Big Lake Stratton using the elementary backstroke. A.J. Levin perfected his swan dive, and Jeremy Fisher learned the butterfly. Scott Seigal, Corey Fisher, Ed Schotz, and Brian McCarrall all learned to dive.

Swim class was the best place to be on the warm days, and not the best place to be on the (very few) cool days, but all things considered, was a fun place to learn a new way to enjoy the water.

Skiing

The rude awakening of Lake Stratton fish marks the opening of the water skiing season at Camp Waupaca. The non-stop fun of Camp Waupaca has made days melt with days, week with week. The end is here, but yet somehow it feels as if camp is just starting. The ski season flew as quickly and soared as high as spray from the ski of an expert. The first four weeks found two additions to Camp Waupaca's ski equipment: the "tube," and a pair of skis designed for trick skiing. The "tube" is an inner tube designed to be towed behind a water ski boat. Many of this year's skiers can attest to the fun and thrills that riding on the tube brought, but without question, Harold Pine (who assisted in ski instruction) was the top tuber this summer. The trick skis were as gladly received as the tube was fun; by using the skis to learn basic tricks, skiers achieved the level of expert camp skier. For the first time, many of this summer's skiers felt the sensation of "sliding" over the water on skis without rudders!

Last year's beginning and intermediate slamom skiers showed much progress during this season. Some have mastered the difficult flying dock start, and all have learned the mechanics of the "slamom cut," and how to send up a wall of spray.

The second four weeks proved Camp Waupaca's busiest: an average day had seven classes; an average class had 17 students. That translates to 119 water skiers per day. The second four weeks also marked the return of last year's staff members Rick Theiler and Cliff Broeniman. What was perhaps the most memorable highlight this year was Brian McCarrall finally succeeding at slalom skiing. Brian has been here for three years, and has made the big step to one ski. Brian picked the perfect day to slalom--it was Parents' Day.

The season's hard work award goes to Gary Alterson and Steve Goldberg. Gary's determination, despite countless falls, was unshakable in his quest to do a front to back turn on trick skis. It was the only obstacle remaining in his being certified an expert skier, and unfortunately it still remains after his hard and extensive practice. Steve came to camp this year with one thing in mind: he wanted to slalom. He mastered the kick off, but could not maintain his balance long enough to fulfill the requirement. The hard work of these two guys show us the kind of devotion you must have if you want to excel.

The Camp Waupaca Barefoot Club had diminished numbers this season with only two members: Steve Wanty and Scott Silverman. Both of our footers improved over last year, and Scott was nearly flawless on his feet, and in fact on his foot: he water skied on just one foot. On two feet, he set a new camp endurance record: three and one-third consecutive laps around the lake!

The skiers and ski staff both have been enjoying the new, larger engine that was bought during the second four week session. With 90 horsepower, the sky is the limit for Camp Waupaca skiers!

The biggest thrill of any skier is, and always will be watching a beginning skier get up out of the water, and skiing for the first time. The excitement and fulfilled anticipation can be seen on the faces of everyone within eyesight of the newest Camp Waupaca skier. Hard work always pays off with results, and as can be seen by the next several pages, Camp Waupaca skiers are certainly no exception.

At Camp Waupaca, campers can earn American Water Ski Association certification of their water skiing skills and abilities. All performance tests must be witnessed by one of the camp's water skiing instructors, and no more than three attempts at a test item can be made in one day. Each level of achievement has specific requirements of the waterskier.

Third class camp skiers must answer correctly questions concerning the Water Skiers' Safety Code. They must also demonstrate water skier's signals to a boat driver, as well as show an ability to adjust binders, and be able to put on water skis in waist deep water. All third class skiers are required to make an unassisted deep or shallow water start on two skis, cross both wakes, and return to the center of the wake without falling. To complete their test, the third class skier must ride for at least one minute without falling, then release the handle and coast unassisted to a stop without losing their balance.

After completing the requirements to be rated a third class camp skier, a camper is eligible to take the second class test. This test requires you put on water skis in deep water, and make an unassisted deep water start, as well as make a seated start from a dock or float, and start immediately after coming to a stop in deep water. A second class skier must be able to ski at "stalling" speed (just fast enough to keep control). They must also be able to lift one ski clear of the water for at least two seconds, and be able to place the handle between their legs and ride with their hands free.

For a camper to increase his rating to first class camp skier, he must start out on two skis, then take one off, and remain skiing for at least twenty seconds. On one ski, the camper is also required to ride across both wakes and return in good control, then, after releasing the handle, coast to a stop without falling. It's also required that the skier, on two skis, jump off of the wake, clearing both skis of the water, and with the boat in a tight turn, be able to swing to the outside ("snap the whip"), and maintain good skiing control.

For a camper to increase his rating from first class to expert camp skier, he must be able to make both a deep water and dock start, and make six continuous turn on that one ski, travelling no slower than 25 miles per hour! To be rated "expert," a camper must also be able to perform tricks, such as skiing backwards, a two ski "side slide," and front to back turns.

Simply being pulled around by a boat does not guarantee any skier advancement. Advancement comes only after good instruction, and hour after hour of practice. It is only when these two ingredients are combined, that an expert skier is made.

Tennis

The Tennis program here at Camp Waupaca was once again a very "smashing" experience for everyone involved. The summer was divided into the difficult aspects of game involved: forehands, backhands, volleys, and the serve. We were, of course, always ready to "serve" the class with suggestions and they, in "in return" gave me their attention and "angle" on the issue.

Campers this year were divided into Advanced, Intermediate, or Beginning players. As we began this system the second four weeks, some of the first four week rankings may be a bit off. However one thing is for sure, there was great improvement on the courts this season.

The advanced players included Andy Goldman, Ted Levine, Jason and Scott Siegal, Eric Fine, Scott Eggener, Brad Waxman, Jon Resnick, Alexander Lurie, David Melam, Scott and Gregg Silverman, Steve Block, and David Eggener.

Players that showed great improvements were Marty Cless, Larry Shneider, and Howie Fleischer. Jason Smith came to camp a relative beginner but now looks ready to beat McEnroe.

This was truly an exceptional summer on the All Waupaca Concrete & Tennis Club. It was an unqualified success in teaching campers how to play and improve their respective games. Have a great year! Included are some "Tennis Memories".

1. Seth Kramer gets the most improved Tennis player of the year.

2. Jason Kosova, how's that spin serve coming?

3. Corey Fisher gets the natural spin serve award.

4. Mike Mandel, Can you believe you slipped on the last point against Eric Schneider yet?

5. Hey, Ian Rothenberg, Eric Fields, Scott Eggener, and Mike Mazursky, Do you want to play doubles this hour??

6. Gary Schotz, Are our parents still going out at midnight?

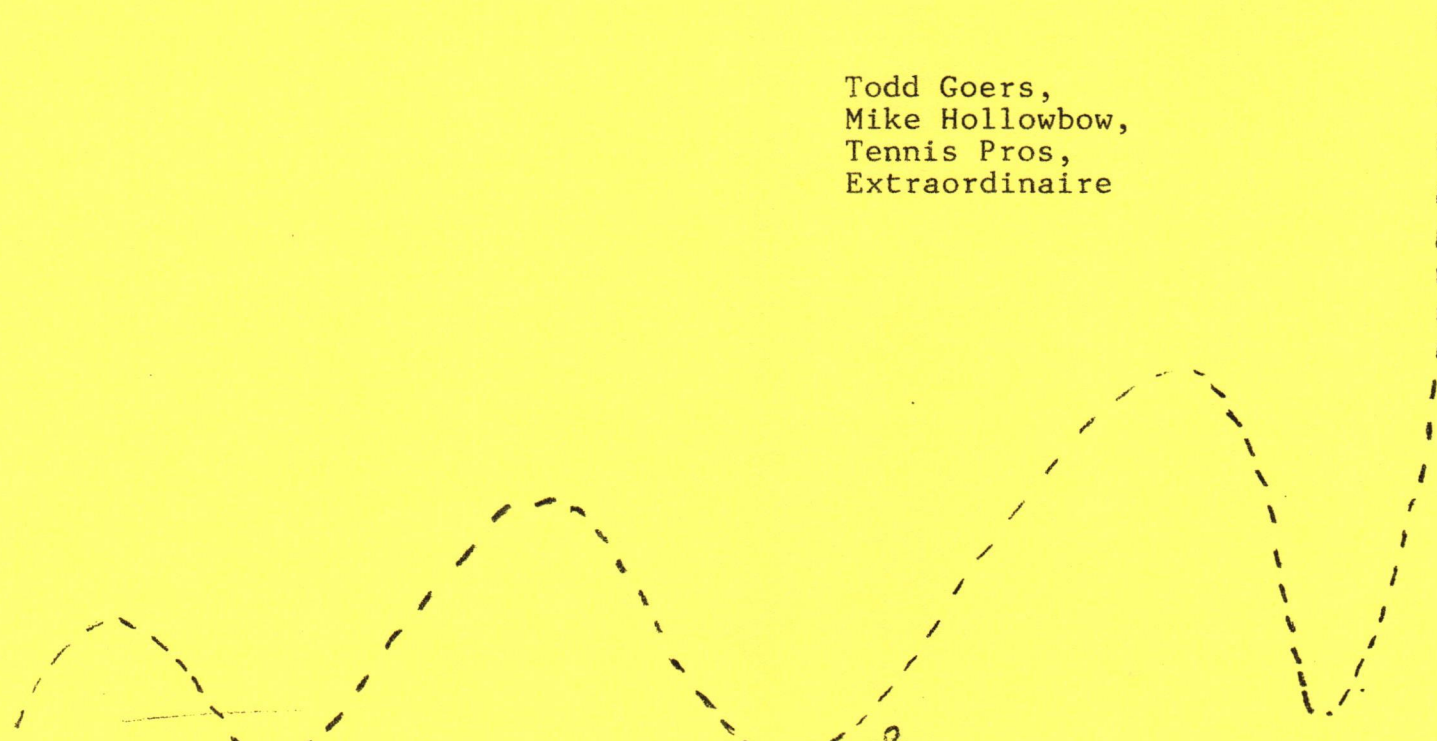

7. Who can forget playing against Alexander Lurie, or was it a Wall?

8. Ryan Jacobson, do you still bring your frogs when you play?

9. Mart Cless, remember beaming the kitchen girls?

10. You hit the ball over---you get it!!
