

wouldn't go out. After the movie, late at night, the embers were still glowing. The pyro-maniacs in our cabin managed to get it started again after taps until Mike Jelinek put it out.

Of course, when one of your counselors is on the water staff, you get a certain number of muck-drops. The leaders in Cabin 9 were Jon Provus with 5, Loren Friedman and Marc Portugal with 2, and Sean Fox, Danny Drucker, and Larry Tarschis with one each.

We would like to thank all of the people that serenaded Larry at night. (Larry, Larry Larrrrrryyyyyy).

CABIN 10

We have all had our fights and fun times in Cabin 10 this four weeks. Like listening to Bobby Berland and Jon Venetos argue over a card game. Watching Jason Harris open his packages of Archies that his parents sent him. Then there's watching Matt Abrams and Chris Roben making fun of each other. Josh Levitt and Marc Weiner played Bene (an English card game that Phil Jenkins taught us). Joey Feldman always read Chris Roben's joke books. Then David Israel always borrowed Jason Harris' Archies and talked in his gangster voice. Our own Pumpkin Zach Strauss loved Whitney Houston so much he was never without her.

Our cabin was full of winners like Chris Roben and his 1st place pool playing in tournament night. Zach Strauss was a winner in the Red, White, and Blue Track Meet and he and Chris Roben placed fifth in Bullseye. While Matt Simon showed the whole division how to play as he won Bullseye. Everyone in our cabin swam lakiers. And, Marc Weiner and David Israel were on the winning North Team in the Sports Spectacular. Also, our whole cabin won cabin clean-up three times. We were all involved in Gold Rush Day when we received an honorable mention for our Wet Head Sponge Toss. Last but not least are our counselors Phil Jenkins and Chris Malcolm.

CABIN 11

Some things you might hear in Cabin 11

Hello! Hello! Hello!

Ron, Ron we got a seventy-eight on inspection.

Justin, stop talking and walking in your sleep.

Chad stop shaking the bed.

Hey guys don't you think Jeffrey Chipmunk is getting a little annoying?

CHOMP!

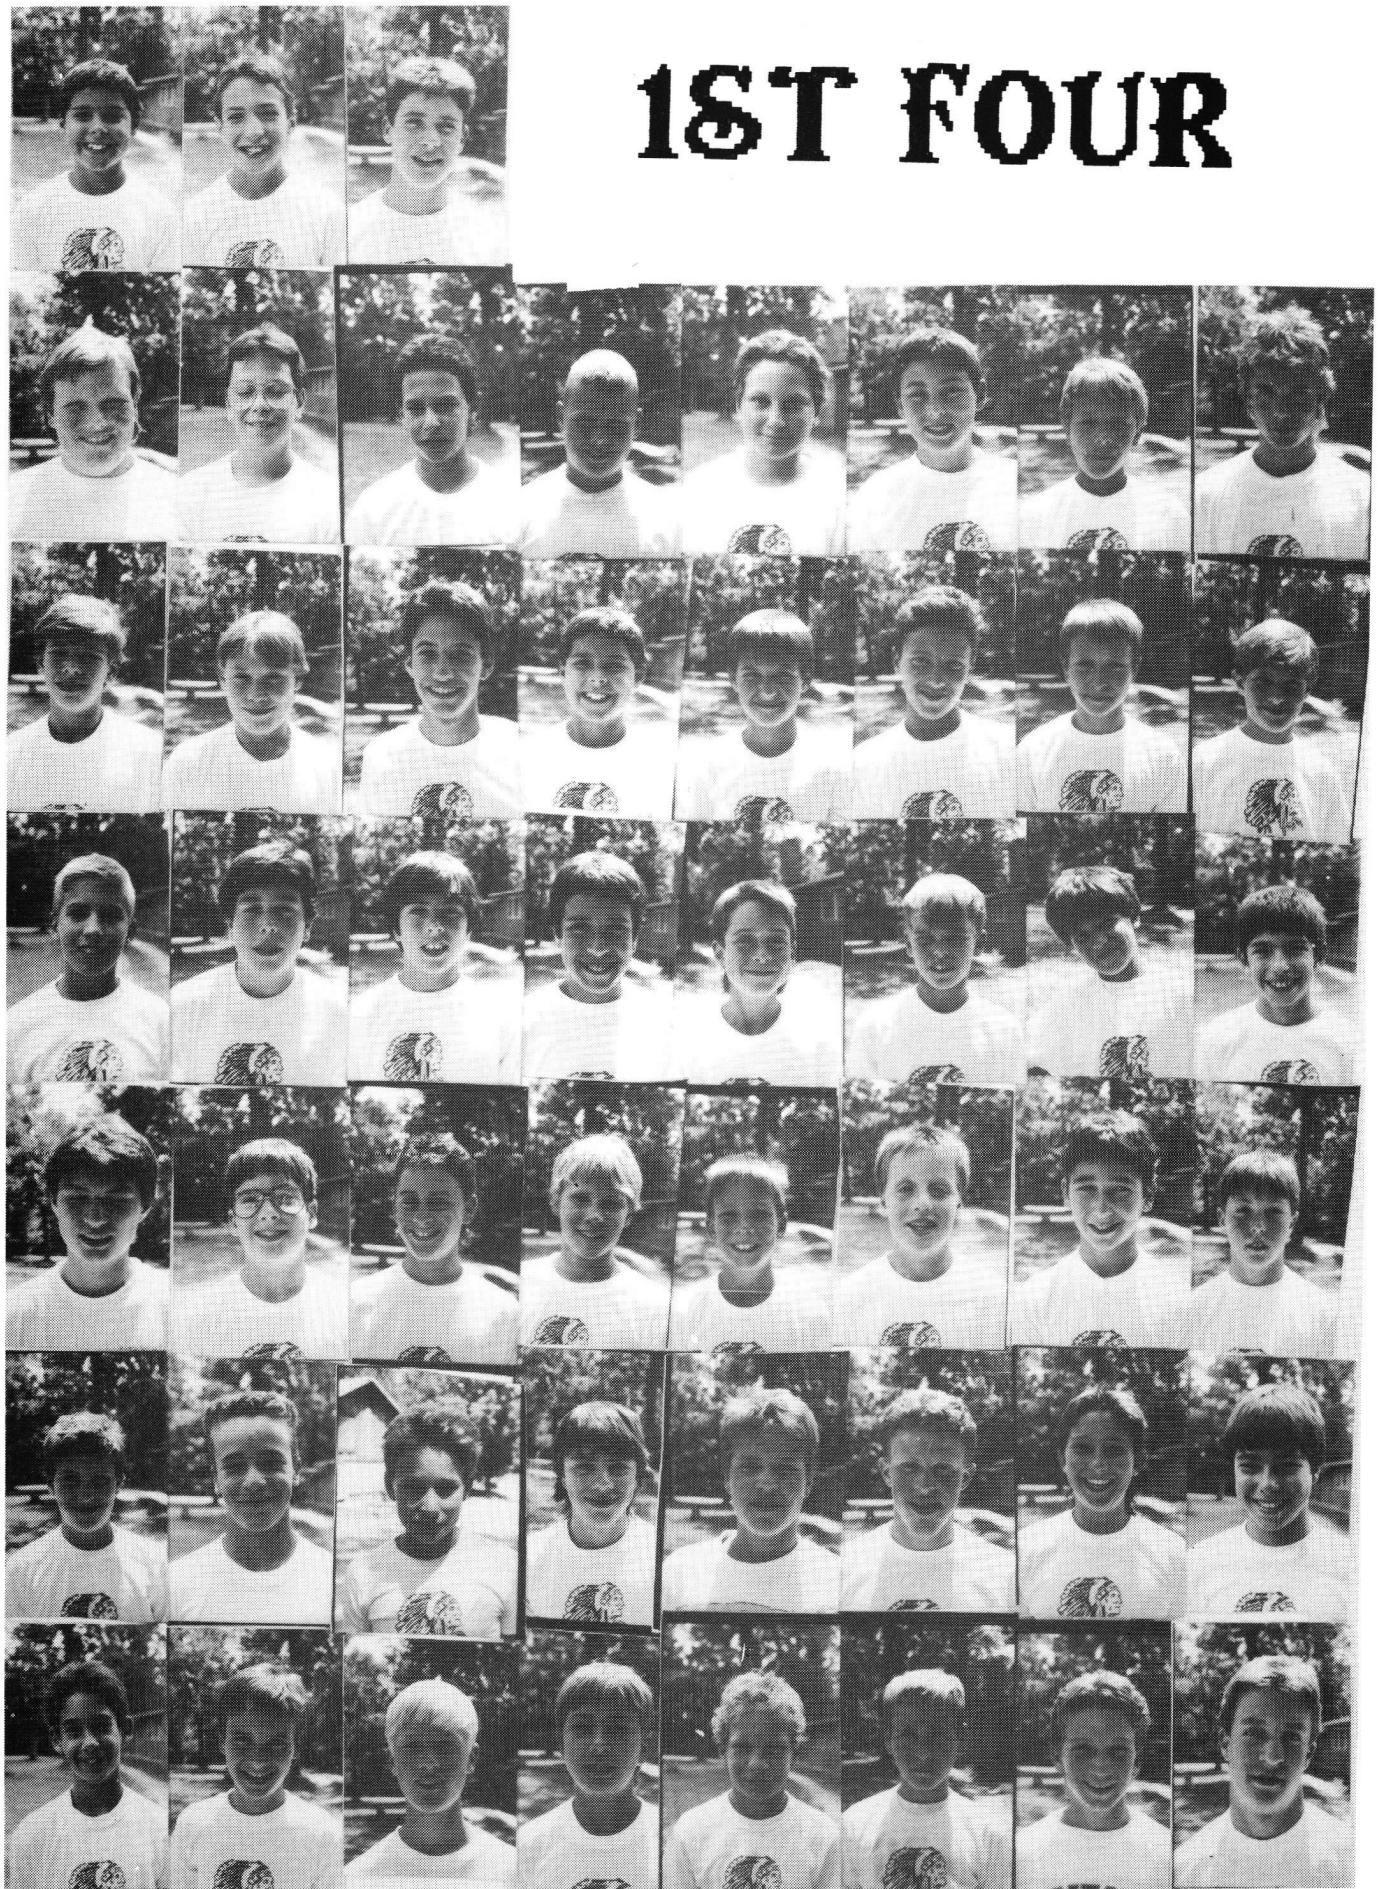

Thank God Lukas' fan doesn't click anymore.

Steve Berg, exactly what is in that suitcase of yours.

Ryan, it is not Cubs Park, it is Wrigley Field.

Bluestone, what happened to your bunkmate?

1ST FOUR

Weitzenfeld how far do you think you'll get on those stilts.

Evans, don't you ever talk?

Brett everyone knows AC/DC, so just turn it down a bit!

CABIN 12

The campers in Cabin 12 were Andy "Killer" Zann, Brett "I never smile" Freed, Ricky "tough guy" Spritz, and Brett "the towel snapper" Schwartz. The whole cabin, including our counselors Sam Kedzierski, Jeff Spang, and Steve Wanty, had to put up with Zann's sleep-talking, Freed's very loud snoring, and Spritz's pile of junk under his bed. Fortunately, Andy Zann never broke a bone when he fell out of bed at night and we never went deaf listening to the Beastie Boys, Fat Boys, or Run DMC blasting out of the boom boxes. Cabin 12 was a unique place to live for the first four weeks and we all enjoyed it.

CABIN 12 - SECOND FOUR WEEKS

In the second four weeks cabin twelve saw a varied and energetic bunch of people. Our counselor Ken was a little late choosing his bed so he ended up on a top bunk. Finally, we all got settled in and started on our journey down the path of the second four.

We were paired against Cabin 14 for the first competition game which turned out to be a blow out. But everyone had fun and our counselor Ken got us a pitcher of water to cool us down. Many of us placed in the Red, White, and Blue Track Meet and were frequently competition captains.

When we had our first cookout we noticed that we didn't have a fire pit so we had to gather rocks and get the shovel to make another one. That night, we wanted to see just how far we could go with our counselor Ken but found out soon enough that he didn't hesitate to excrete egg rolls.

At night we liked to jump into each other's bed but soon realized that we should stay away from Ronnie Goldberg. Scott Hammerman and Ryan Lieber had their own scholarly discussions at night and Ross Friedman and Andy Ettinger were night O.D. making sure every one was asleep by shining flashlights in their faces.

For Gold Rush, we had a Wet and Wild Laser Tag game that received a honorable mention. Strangely enough, however, our counselor Ken disappeared the same time the crusty old prospector Zeek appeared.

During rest hour we found many games to play. Raft ball, Ninja poker chip throwing, broom fights, and all out fist fighting was enjoyed by all. When we bored, Ross Friedman led us in a rousing chorus of the Cubs Song.

When we went to town we out bowled our counselor Rob Everman. On one of the cabin nights, Ken taught us how to use his water funnel and took us all shooting at the rifle range.

At night, we enjoyed hearing stories be they scary, stupid, or surprising. We would like to thank Bob Mowen for telling us The Lottery.

The campers in cabin 12 were Kevin Berger, Ronnie Goldberg, Jon Shulkin (who learned how to fly with the help of Ken), Keith Radeke, Brad Scheider (who was called mouse by Rob), David Engle, Ross Friedman, Andy Ettinger, Eric Marder, Ryan Leiber, and Scott Hammerman. Our awesome counselors were Ken Lapins and Rob Everman.

We enjoyed being in cabin twelve and look forward to returning to Waupaca for many years.

CABIN 14

A Typical Cabin 14 Day

First, Mike Euer would attempt to wake everyone up at 7:15 (always fifteen minutes early because we were the first cabin). Nobody would move and everyone would stay in bed. Then Sam yells, "Everyone up!" Then Jon Wellner gives a running count of the number of days left of camp to Phil Kafin. Then, we hear Matt Silverstein try to shake Mike Morgolese out of bed. Mike replies, "Dude, what do you want" Matt asks him if he wants to play Dungeons and Dragons and Mike says, "that would be gnarly dude."

Everyone jumps on Chad Kasdins bed and he yells for them to get the heck off. Matt Tenny and Mitch Gordon start to complain and Josh Reich would open up another package. Dave Hillman would then yell that Josh Bender is going to get a cold shower. Jared Struber jumps up and says, "Wait, I'll turn on the water. As Bender is soaking he reminds Dave Hillman that David Klow is still in bed. And, Klow says, Just lucky I guess."

We were all lucky to be in Cabin 14 this four week

THE J.C. BATH AND SPA (CABIN 15)

Scott Rubin, Mike Jelenik, Eric Goldstein, and Jon Torshen, a group of guys that were just too good for their own good. "Rubes" with his charm, "Jel" with his wit, "Torsh" with his white skin, and Eric with his gas. It was the cabin of all cabins. We had some fun with our theme songs, Luca and Funky Town. The whole gang got into Meat Loaf a lot this year. We had an alright time on our campout also. We used a few far-fetched stories to gain attention. Mike and Eric were from Juvenile Hall in Texas, Scott was from Illinois and not Munster, Indiana, and Torshen...Torshen didn't say much. It all worked out well though, Scott met Michelle, Mike and Eric mingled, and Torshen...Torshen didn't say much. There were a few battles in our cabin as well: Mike telling Scott that Segal was a good choice, Scott saying, "NO!", Torshen and Eric moving Jim Wiederkehr's bed at 1:00 a.m., and everyone's ongoing battle against the famed Rob Everman Butt Noogie.

GOLD RUSH

Bob Mowen was a definite extra big delight in our cabin. He was great with all his stories, dreams, feelings, Ferret "stuff", and his RING. And who could forget, trips to the Rosa, Dairy Queen, the Bowling alley, and arm wrestling the bartender. Tribes was fun also. Congratulations to Torshen for finally winning! Well it was a great year but then we left, went our separate ways -- Northbrook, Chicago, and Munster...until next year...WHEN WE WORK HERE!

written by:
Mike Jelinek
and influenced by Scott Rubin

CABIN 15 - SECOND FOUR WEEKS

Cabin 15 proudly salutes Ryan Kaufman, Ben Carbonargi, Daniel Lichtenstein, Brian Millman, Randy Loeb, Tony Portnoy, Kyle Gams, Ricky Manelis, Mike Schaffer, Matt Schragger, Brian Levin, and our two counselors Jim Wiederkehr and Al Shambow. And, Cabin 15 would like to slute Bob Mowen for taking us to the far fields for a camp fire and story telling session. Kyle Gams was the Fire Fairy trying to ignite Waupaca.

We will remember:

Kyle Gams and his love of Heavy Metal

Ricky Manelis and his love of guitars and airplanes

Randy Loeb and his love of the A's and Yankees

Dan Lichtenstein and his love of Nature

Tony Portnoy and his love of Led Zeppelin

Brian Levin and his laundry getting sent to the girls camp.

Brian Millman and his lack of energy

Matt Schragger and his baseball fever

Mike Schaffer and his spazzes

and our counselors:

Jim Wiederkehr and his love of new wave and Al Shambow and his cleanliness.

All present, and accounted for, and a fun year, SIR!

C.I.T. VILLAGE

The first four weeks at Camp Waupaca was the greatest for the C.I.T. Village. The inhabitants were Andy "Take all the credit" Kaplan, Danny "the Toy Hawk" Drexler, Ed "Spaz" Schotz, Scott "Cuke" Macomber, Al "the Cosmetic King" Genender, Jon "Mr. Cubs" Gordon, Chris "the California Dude" Thake, Scott "Rabbi" Levine, Mike "Tank" Shea, Jeff "Basketball Boy" Ptak, Scott "Motley Crue" Berland, Gregg "MotoManiac" Feinstein, and Marc "Hide the Schwartz" Hirsch. Ed Schoz (Tony Hawk), Chris Thake (Steve Cabillaro), and Danny Drexler (Mike McGill) tried to teach Scott Berland how to skate board this year with a certain degree of success.

Our trips to town to see movies, or to go bowling, to to use the swings & spinning wheel with Ed Schotz were a riot! Getting food at the Red Owl was the highlight of the evening although Paul & thom contantly looked over our shoulders to watch the registers.

We did have a pretty good trip on the tiring Waupaca River canoe trip. The dogs that chased Torsh, Rubes & Goldie slowed them down a bit, though.

We enjoyed the overnighter at Hartman's Creek. Our encounter with the girls group was great. The bon fire was fun and when Gordo's shoe caught on fire everyone ran for the marshmallows. All in all, the first four weeks at the Village was an experience of learning and of having fun.

C.I.T. VILLAGE - SECOND FOUR WEEKS

The second four weeks in the CIT Village saw the traditional wet-nose arrival. Marc "Lizard" Stein wowed the Village wth his tic-tacs on his feather weight board, Scott Fox arrived late but with a fresh, new leg (bought at K-Mart), Josh Abrams outsmarted us in Trivial Pursuit, Randy Weiss won everyone's money, Adam Wolff showed us the ultimate way to nag Don Feinstein. Steve Aaronson left us early and we were sad to see him go. We expect him back for another year.

For Gold Rush Day, we had a miniature golf course which received second place. We had a "Great" Wolf River trip. What Rapids! The white water was unbearable.

We had a campout to Hatman Creek State Park and had some visitors.

The Village was comprised of: Scott Macomber, Scott Levine, Gregg Feinstein, Scott Berland, Dan Drexler, Chris Thake, Jon Gordon, Scott Fox, Adam Wolff, Randy Weiss, Harlan Cohen, Josh Abrams, Steve Aarsonson, Marc Stein, Jeff Fagel, Greg Cohen, and Don Feinstein.